

The Revolution Will Not Be Televised

On April 12th 2002 the world awoke to the news that Venezuelan President Hugo Chavez had been removed from office and replaced by a new interim government. What had in fact taken place was the first Latin American coup of the 21st century, and the world's first media coup. . .

The documentary, depicts the overthrow and return to power of President Chavez. The film crew was with the President filming an observational documentary when the coup took place.

"A wonderful story, brilliantly told. The energy and pace of this documentary, combined with remarkable insider footage, make it a thrilling experience for the viewer. . .

A combination of intelligence, passion, and humor illuminates this controversial tale of big oil, international intrigue, charismatic leadership, class struggle, revolution and ultimately, the hopes of people for real democracy."
