Featured speaker Ann Wright will present her perspective on the Iraq war and the current direction of U.S. foreign policy. Ann is a retired Army Colonel and former Foreign Service diplomat who resigned her post after 16 years service in March, 2003. Her resignation was due to disagreement with the Bush administration’s decision to go to war in Iraq without the authorization of the UN Security Council, the lack of effort in resolving the Israeli-Palestinian conflict, the lack of policy on North Korea and unnecessary curtailment of civil liberties in the United States. Her talk will be followed by a question and answer session.
