

VOICES IN WARTIME

THE MOVIE

Voices in Wartime uses the words of Wilfred Owen, considered by many to be the greatest poet of World War I, as a guide:

“Above all I am not concerned with Poetry. My subject is War, and the pity of War. The Poetry is in the pity... All a poet can do today is warn. That is why true Poets must be truthful.”

Voices in Wartime sharply etches the experience of war through powerful images and the words of poets – unknown and world-famous. Soldiers, journalists, historians and experts on combat interviewed in the film add diverse perspectives on war’s effects on soldiers, civilians and society. Poets around the world share their views and experiences of war that extend beyond national borders and into the depth of the human soul.
